Dear Hopwood:

Mr. Dulles has asked me to thank you for your letter of 6 December, in which you invite a CIA representative to speak on 27 February on "The Role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Formulation of National Policies and Strategies."

Since Mr. Amory will not be available on that date, I should like to nominate for your consideration Mr. [redacted] who has for more than three years been our Assistant Adviser to the National Security Council's Planning Board. He not only is thoroughly familiar with the operations of that Board but, as past Chief of our Estimates Staff, has an intimate knowledge of the way in which the Intelligence community contributes to the making of national policy. He is an accomplished lecturer, and I am sure he can successfully cover the topic you have in mind.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

Dear General Hopwood:

In response to your letter of December 6th I wish you to know that I am delighted to learn that you are including a discussion of "The Role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Formulation of National Policies and Strategies" in your curriculum. I am also pleased that you have called upon us to furnish the lecturer for that topic.

Unfortunately, Mr. Amory has a prior commitment that makes him unavailable for February 27th. I would like, therefore, to nominate for your consideration Mr. [redacted] who has for more than three years been our Assistant Adviser to the National Security Council's Planning Board. He not only is thoroughly familiar with the operations of that Board but, as past Chief of our Estimates Staff, has an intimate knowledge of the way in which the intelligence community contributes to the making of national policy. He is an accomplished lecturer and will, I am confident, successfully carry out the assignment you have in mind.
